Step4:

A.What is the role of "main.hbs"? How does it being used/called in the app?

Main.hbs serves as the layout template for rendering views. Whenever res.render is invoked, it automatically calls the main.hbs file to structure the rendered content.

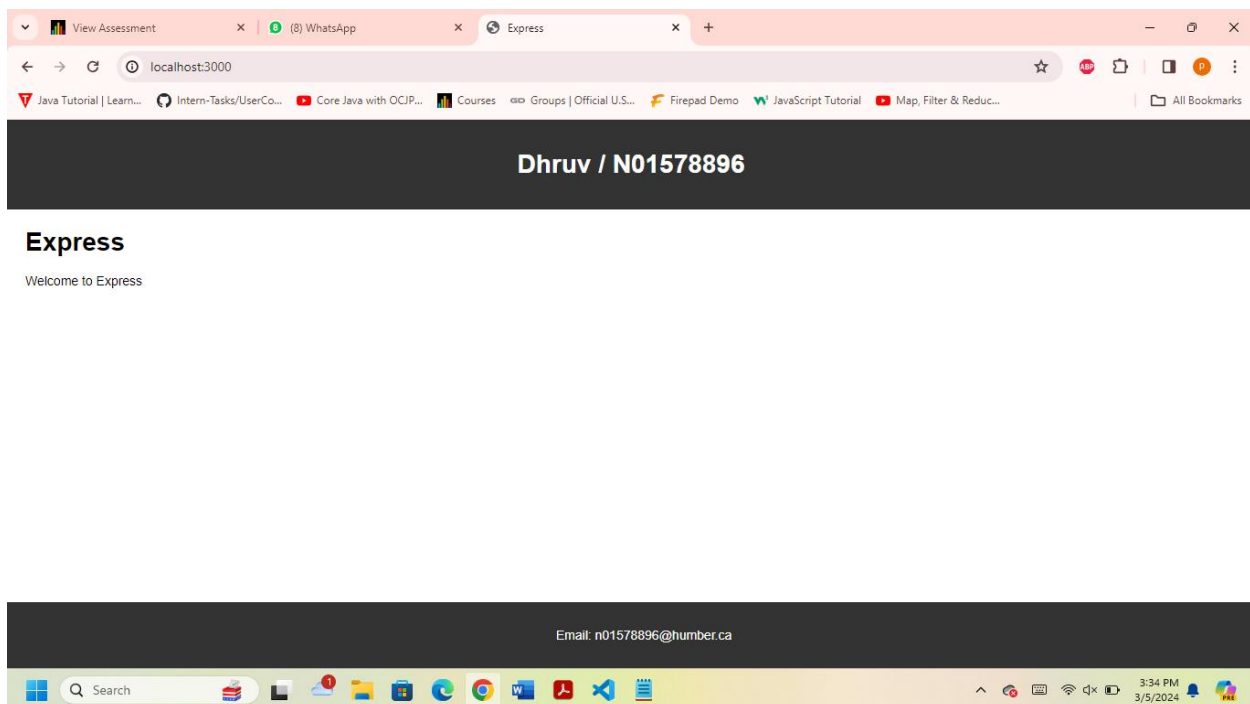

B. What is the role of “index.hbs” and “error.hbs”? How do these files being used/called in the app?

Index.hbs and error.hbs are content files designed to be rendered within the main.hbs layout template. In the routes, they are called using the res.render method, specifying the respective file names as parameters.

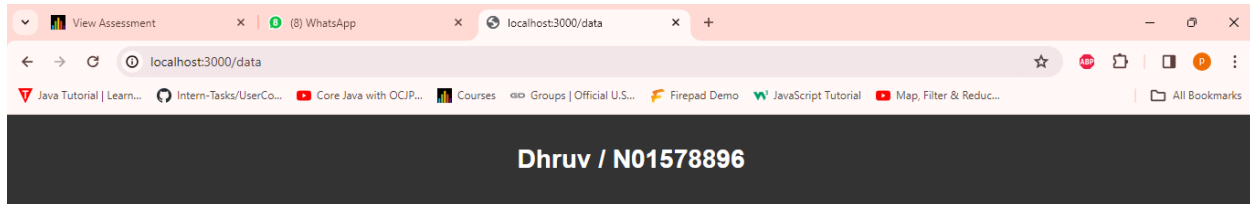

C. In “app.js”, what is the role of the following line? What happens if you comment it out?

This feature in Express.js enables your application to serve static files stored in the "public" directory. By doing this, such as images, stylesheets, and scripts can be sent directly to clients without requiring custom route handling. This simplifies the management of static content, making it more efficient to handle assets within your web application.
